

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

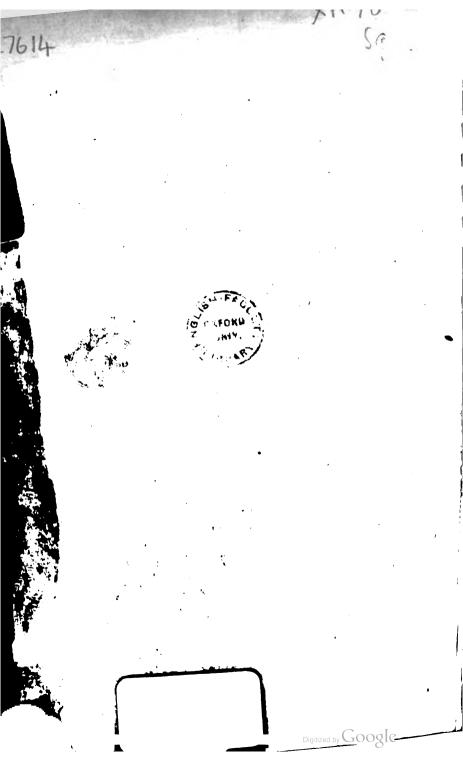

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

JULIUS CÆSAR.

ACT I. SCENEL

A Street in Rome.

Enter Flavius, Marullus, and certain Plebeians.

FLAVIUS.

ENCE; home, you idle creatures, get you home;

Is this a holiday? what, know you not, Being mechanical, you ought not walk

Of your proteffion? fpeak, what trade art thou?

1 Pleb. Why, Sir, a carpenter.

Mar. Where is thy leather apron, and thy rule? What doft thou with thy beft apparel on?

You, Sir, what trade are you?

2 Pleb. Truly, Sir, in respect of a fine workman, I am but as you would fay, a cobler.

Mar. But what trade art thou? answer me directly.

2 Pleb. A trade, Sir, that I hope I may use with a fase conficience, which is indeed, Sir, a mender of bad foals.

Flav. What trade, thou knave? thou naughty knave, what trade?

N 4

2 Pleb.

2 Pleb. Nay, I befeech you, Sir, be not out with me; yet if you be out, Sir, I can mend you.

Flav. What mean'st thou by that? mend me; thou fawcy fellow?

2 Pleb. Why, Sir, cobble you.

Flav. Thou art a cobler, art thou?

2 Pleb. Truly, Sir, all that I live by, is the awl: I meddle with no 'man's' matters, nor woman's matters; but withall, I am indeed, Sir, a furgeon to old fhoes; when they are in great danger, I re-cover them. As proper men as ever frod upon neats-leather have gone upon my handy-work.

Flav. But wherefore art not in thy fhop to-day? Why doft thou lead these men about the streets?

2 Pleb. Truly, Sir, to wear out their fhoes, to get my felf into more work. But indeed, Sir, we make holiday to fee Cæfar, and to rejoice in his triumph.

Mar. Wherefore rejoice !- what conquest brings he home ? What tributaries follow him to Rome, To grace in captive bonds his chariot wheels? You blocks, you stones, you worse than senseles things ! O you hard hearts! you cruel men of Rome! Knew you not Pompey? many a time and oft Have you climb'd up to walls and battlements. To towers and windows, yea, to chimney tops, Your infants in your arms, and there have fat The live-long day with patient expectation, To fee great Pompey pais the ftreets of Rome: And when you faw his chariot but appear. Have you not made an universal shout. That Tyber trembled underneath his banks To hear the replication of your founds, Made in his concave fhores? And do you now Put on your best attire? and do you now Cull out an holiday? and do you now Strew flowers in his way, that * comes to Rome In triumph' over Pompey's blood? Be gone.

JULIUS CÆSAR.

Run to your houses, fall upon your knees, Pray to the Gods, to intermit the plague, That needs must light on this ingratitude. Flav. Go, go, good countrymen, and for this fault Affemble all the poor men of your fort, Draw them to ³ 'Typer's' bank, and weep your tears Into the channel, 'till the lowest ftream Do kifs the most exalted shores of all. [Exeunt Plebeians: See whe'r their baseft mettle be not mov'd ; They vanish'd tongue-ty'd in their guiltines. Go you down that way tow'rds the Capitol, This way will I; difrobe the images, If you do find them deck'd with ceremonies. Mar. May we do fo? You know it is the feaft of Lupercal. Flav. It is no matter, let no images Be hung with Calar's trophies; I'll about, And drive away the vulgar from the ftreets : So do you too, where you perceive them thick. These growing feathers pluckt from Ce/ar's wing Will make him fly an ordinary pitch. Who elfe would foar above the view of men, And keep us all in fervile fearfulnefs. [Exeunt severally.

SCENEII.

Enter Cæsar, Antony for the Course, Calphurnia, Portia, Decimus, Cicero, Brutus, Cassi, Casca, and a Soothsayer.

Caf. Calpburnia ! Cafc. Peace, ho! Cafar fpeaks. Cafc. Calpburnia ! Calpb. Here, my Lord. Caf. Stand you directly in Antonius' way, When he doth run his courfe ---- Antonius ! Ant. Cafar, my Lord. Caf. Forget not in your fpeed, Antonius,

Set on and leave no ceremony out. Sooth. Cafar ! Caf. Ha! who calls? Calc. Bid every noife be still; peace yet again. Caf. Who is it in the prefs that calls on me? I hear a tongue shriller than all the mulick, Cry, Cafar ! Speak; Cafar is turn'd to hear. Sooth. Beware the Ides of March. Cef. What man is that? Bru. A footh-fayer bids you beware the Ides of March. $C\alpha$. Set him before me, let me fee his face. Cal. Fellow, come from the throng, look upon Calar. Cal. What fay'ft thou to me now? fpeak once again. Sooth. Beware the Ides of March. Cal. He is a dreamer, let us leave him; pafs. [Exeunt. Manent Brutus and Callius.

S C E N E III.

Caf. Will you go fee the order of the courfe ? Bru. Not I.

Cal. I pray you do.

Bru. I am not game fome; I do lack fome part. Of that quick fpirit that is in Antony:

Let me not hinder, Caffius, your defires; I'll leave you.

Caf. Brutus, I do observe you now of late; I have not from your eyes that gentleness And shew of love, as I was wont to have; You bear too stubborn and too strange a hand Over your friend that loves you.

Bru. Callins,

Be not deceiv'd: if I have veil'd my look,

I turn

I turn the trouble of my countenance Meerly upon my felf. Vexed I am Of late, with paffions of fome difference, Conceptions only proper to my felf, Which give fome foil, perhaps, to my behaviour: But let not therefore my good friends be griev'd, Among which number, Callius, be you one, Nor construe any further my neglect, Than that poor Brutus, with himfelf at war, Forgets the fnews of love to other men. Ca/, Then, Brutus, I have much miftook your paffion, By means whereof, this breaft of mine hath buried Thoughts of great value, worthy cogitations. Tell me, good Brutus, can you fee your face? Bru. No, Caffius, for the eye fees not it felf, But by reflexion from fome other things. Cal. 'Tis just. And it is very much lamented, Brutus, That you have no fuch mirrors, as will turn Your hidden worthinefs into your eye, That you might fee your shadow. I have heard Where many of the best respect in Rome, (Except immortal Cafar) speaking of Brutus, And groaning underneath this age's yoak, Have wish'd that noble Brutus had his eyes. Bru. Into what dangers would you lead me, Caffius, That you would have me feek into my felf, For that which is not in me? Cal. Therefore, good Brutus, be prepar'd to hear: And fince you know you cannot fee your felf So well as by reflexion; I, your glafs, Will modefully discover to your felf That of your felf, which yet you know not of. And be not jealous of me, gentle Brutus: Were I a common laugher, or did ufe To stale with ordinary oaths my love To every new proteftor; if you know That I do fawn on men, and hug them hard,

An:

204

And after fcandal them; or if you know That I profess my felf in banqueting To all the rout, then hold me dangerous.

[Flourish and shout. Bru. What means this shouting? I do fear, the people Chuse Castar for their King.

Cal. Ay, do you fear it?

Then must I think you would not have it fo.

Bru. I would not, Caffius; yet I love him well! But wherefore do you hold me here fo long? What is it that you would impart to me? If it be ought toward the general good, Set honour in one eye, and death i' th' other, And I will look on ' 'death' indifferently: For let the Gods fo fpeed me, as I love The name of honour, more than I fear death.

Cal. I know that virtue to be in you, Brutus, As well as I do know your outward favour. Well, honour is the fubject of my ftory: I cannot tell, what you and other men Think of this life; but for my fingle felf, 1 had as lief not be, as live to be In awe of fuch a thing as I my felf. I was born free as Cæfar, fo were you; We both have fed as well, and we can both Endure the winter's cold, as well as he. For once upon a raw and gufty day, The troubled Typer chafing with his fhores, Cafar fays to me, Dar's thou, Caffius, now Leap in with me into this angry flood, and fwim = to yonder point ? upon the word, Accoutred as I was, I plunged in, And bad him follow; fo indeed he did. With lufty finews, throwing it afide. And stemming it with hearts of controversie. But ere we could arrive the point propos'd, Cafar cry'd, Help me, Caffius, or I fink. I, as Aneas, our great anceftor, Did from the flames of Troy upon his shoulder The old Anchifes bear, fo, from the waves of Tyber Did I the tired Cafar: and this man Is now become a God, and Caffius is A wretched creature, and must bend his body, If Cæsar carelesly but nod on him. He had a feaver when he was in Spain, And when the fit was on him, I did mark How he did shake : 'tis true, this God did shake : His coward lips did from their colour fly, And that fame eye, whole bend doth awe the world. Did lofe its luftre; I did hear him groan : Ay, and that tongue of his that bad the Romans Mark him, and write his fpeeches in their books. Alas 'it cry'd, Give me fome drink, Titinius -As a fick girl. Ye Gods, it doth amaze me, A man of fuch a feeble temper fhould So get the flart of the majeflick world, And bear the palm alone. Shout. Flourifb Bru. Another general fhout! I do believe, that these applauses are For fome new honours that are heap'd on Cafar. Caf. Why, man, he doth beftride the narrow world Like a Coloffus, and we petty men Walk under his huge legs, and peep about, To find ourfelves difhonourable graves. Men at fome times are masters of their fates: The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our ftars, But in our felves, that we are underlings. Brutus and Cæfar ! what should be in that Cæfar ? Why fhould that name be founded more than yours? Write them together, yours is as fair a name ; Sound them, it doth become the mouth as well;

Weigh

Weigh them, it is as heavy; conjure with 'em, Brutus will ftart a fpirit as foon as Ce/ar. Now in the names of all the Gods at once, Upon what meat doth this our Ca/ar feed, That he is grown fo great ? Age, thou-art fham'd; Rome, thou haft loft the breed of noble bloods. When went there by an age, fince the great flood, But it was fam'd with more than with one man? When could they fay, 'till now, that talk'd of Rome, That her wide walls incompaft but one man ? O! you and I have heard our fathers fay, There was a Brutus once, that would have brook'd Th' eternal devil to keep his ftate in Rome, As eafily as a King.

Bru. That you do love me, I am nothing jealous; What you would work me to, I have fome aim; How I have thought of this, and of these times, I shall recount hereaster: for this present, I would not (fo with love I might intreat you) Be any further mov'd. What you have faid, I will confider; what you have to fay, I will with patience hear, and find a time Both meet to hear, and answer such high things. 'Till then, my noble friend, chew upon this; Brutus had rather be a villager, Than to repute himself a fon of Rome Under such hard conditions, as this time Is like to lay upon us.

Caf. I am glad that my weak words Have ftruck but thus much fhew of fire from Brutus.

SCENE IV.

Enter Cæsar and bis Train.

Bru. The games are done, and Cæsar is returning. Cas. As they pass by, pluck Casca by the sleeve, And he will, after his sour fashion, tell you What hath proceeded worthy note to day.

Bru. I will do fo: but look you, Calfius, The angry fpot doth glow on Cefar's brow, And all the reft look like a chidden train; Calpbarnia's check is pale, and Cicero Looks with fuch ferret and fuch fiery eyes, As we have feen him in the Capitol, Being croft in conf'rence with fome Senators.

Caf. Cafca will tell us what the matter is. Caf. Antonius !

Ant. Cafar.

Caf. Let me have men about me that are fat, Sleek-headed men, and fuch as fleep a-nights: Yond Caffins has a lean and hungry look,

He thinks too much; fuch men are dangerous. Ant. Fear him not, Cafar, he's not dangerous.

He is a noble Roman, and well given.

Cef. Would he were fatter; but I fear him not: Yet if my name were liable to fear, I do not know the man I fhould avoid, So foon as that fpare Caffus. He reads much, He is a great obferver, and he looks Quite through the deeds of men. He loves no plays, As thou doft, Antony; he hears no mufick: Seldom he fmiles, and fmiles in fuch a fort As if he mock'd himfelf, and fcorn'd his fpirit That could be mov'd to fmile at any thing. Such men as he be never at heart's eafe, Whilft they behold a greater than themfelves, And therefore are they very dangerous. I rather tell shee what is to be fear'd,

SCENE. V.

Manent Brutus, Caffius, and Cafca.

Cafc. You pull'd me by the cloak, would you speak with me ?

Bru. Ay, Cafca, tell us what hath chanc'd to-day, That Ga far looks to fad.

Ca/c. Why, you were with him, were you not?

Bru. I should not then ask Casca what had chanc'd.

Cafe. Why, there was a crown offer'd him; and being offer'd him, he put it by with the back of his hand, thus, and then the people fell a fhouting.

Bru. What was the fecond noise for?

Cafc. Why, for that too.

208

Caf. They should thrice: what was the last cry for ? Cafe. Why, for that too.

Bru. Was the crown offer'd him thrice?

Cafe. Ay marry was't, and he put it by thrice, every time gentler than other; and at every putting by, mine honeft neighbours flouted.

Ca/. Who offer'd him the crown?

Cafc. Why, Antony.

Bru. Tell us the manner of it, gentle Ca/ca.

Caf. I can as well be hang'd as tell the manner of it : it was meer foolery, I did not mark it. I faw Mark Antony offer him a crown, yet 'twas not a crown neither, 'twas one of these coronets; and, as I told you, he put it by once; but for all that, to my thinking, he would fain have had it. Then he offered it to him again : then he put it by again; but, to my thinking, he was very loth to lay his fingers off it. And then he offered it the third time; he put it the third time by; and ftill as he refus'd it, the rabblement ''fhouted,' and clapp'd their chopt hands, and threw up their fweaty night-caps, and utter'd fuch a deal of flinking breath, becaufe Ca/ar refus'd the crown, that it had almost choaked Ga/ar; for he fwooned, and fell down at it : and for mine own part, I durft not laugh, for fear of opening my lips, and receiving the bad air.

İt,

Cal. But foft, I pray you; what did Cafar fwoon?

Casc. He fell down in the market-place, and foam'd at mouth, and was speechless.

Bru. 'Tis very like; he hath the falling-ficknefs, Caf. No, Cafar hath it not; but you, and I,

And honest Ca/ca; we have the falling-fickness.

Cafc. I know not what you mean by that; but I am fure Cefar fell down: If the tag-rag people did not clap bim, and hifs him, according as he pleas'd, and difpleas'd them, as they use to do the players in the theatre, I am no true man.

Bru. What faid he, when he came unto himfelf?

Cafc. Marry, before he fell down, when he perceiv'd the common herd was glad he refus'd the crown, he pluckt me ope his doublet, and offer'd them his throat to cut: If I had been a man of any occupation, if I would not have taken him at ⁶ 'his' word, I would I might go to hell among the rogues; and fo he fell. When he came to himfelf again, he faid, If he had done, or faid any thing amifs, he defir'd their Worfhips to think it was his infirmity. Three or four wenches where I ftood, cry'd, Alas, good foul — and forgave him with all their hearts: but there's no heed to be taken of them; if Cafar had ftabb'd their mothers, they would have done no lefs.

Bru. And after that, he came, thus fad, away. Caic. Ay.

Caf. Did Gicero fay any thing ?

Caf. Ay, he spoke Greek.

Caf. To what effect ?

Cafc. Nay, if I tell you that, I'll ne'er look you i' th' VoL.V. O face face again. But those that understood him, smill'd at one another, and shook their heads; but for mine own part it was Greek to me. I could tell you more news too: Marullus and Flavius, for pulling fcarfs off Cafar's Images, are put to filence. Fare you well. There was more foolery yet, if I could remember it. Caf. Will you fup with me to night, Cafca?

Ca/c. No, 1 am promis'd forth.

Caf. Will you dine with me to-morrow?

Calc. Ay, if I be alive, and your mind hold, and your dinner be worth the eating.

Cal. Good, I will expect you.

Casc. Do so : farewel both.

Exit.

Bru. What a blunt fellow is this grown to be! He was quick mettle, when he went to school.

Cal. So is he now, in execution Of any bold or noble enterprize, However he puts on this tardy form : This rudenels is a fawce to his good wit. Which gives men flomach to digeft his words With better appetites.

Bru. And to it is: for this time I will leave you, To-morrow, if you pleafe to fpeak with me, I will come home to you; or if you will, Come home to me, and I will wait for you.

Ca/. I will do fo: 'till then, think of the world.

Exit Brutus.

Well, Brutus, thou art noble : yet I fee Thy honourable metal may be wrought From 7'that' it is disposed, therefore 'tis meet That noble minds keep ever with their likes: For who fo firm, that cannot be feduc'd? Thunder and lightning. Enter Calca, his fourd drawn, and Cicero.

Ge. G Ood even, Cafes; brought you Cafar home? Why are you breathlefs, and why ftare you fo? Cafe. Are not you mov'd, when all the fway of earth Shakes like a thing unfirm? O Gieero ! I have feen tempelts, when the foolding winds Have riv'd the knotty oaks, and I have feen Th' ambitious ocean fwell, and rage, and foam, To be exalted with the threatning clouds: But never 'till to-night, never 'till now, Did I go through a tempeft dropping fire. Either there is a civil ftrife in heav'n, Or elfe the world, too faucy with the Gods, Incenfes them to fend deftruction.

Cic. Why, faw you any thing more wonderful? Calc. A common flave, you know him well by fight, Held up his left hand, which did flame and burn, Like twenty torches join'd; and yet his hand, Not fenfible of fire, remain'd unfcorch'd. Befides, (I ha' nor fince put up my fword) Againft the Capitol I met a lion, Who glar'd upon me, and went furly by, Without annoying me. And there were drawn Upon a heap, a hundred ghaftly women Transformed with their fear, who fwore they faw Men all in fire walk up and down the fireets. And yeftenday, the bird of night did fit,

Even at noon-day, upon the market-place, Houting and fhrieking. When these prodigies Do fo conjointly meet, let not men fay, These are their reasons, they are natural: For I believe, they are portentous things Unto the climate that they point upon.

Cic. Indeed, it is a ftrange-disposed time: But men may construe things after their fashion, Clean from the purpose of the things themselves. Comes Casar to the Capitol to-morrow?

Cafe. He doth : for he did bid Antonius Send word to you, he would be there to-morrow.

Cic. Good-night then, Casca; this disturbed sky Is not to walk in.

Cafc. Farewel, Cicero.

[Exit Cicero.

SCENE, VII.

Enter Caffius.

Caf. Who's there?

Cafc. A Roman.

Caf. Ca/ca, by your voice.

Cafc. Your ear is good. Caffius, what night is this? Caf. A very pleasing night to honeft men.

Cafe. Who ever knew the heavens menace fo?

Caf. Those that have known the earth so full of faults. For my part I have walk'd about the streets, Submitting me unto the perilous night; And thus unbraced, Casca, as you see, Have bar'd my bosom to the thunder-stone: And when the cross blue lightning seem'd to open The breast of heav'n, I did present my self Ev'n in the aim and very flash of it.

Ca/c. But wherefore did you fo much tempt the heav'ns? It is the part of men to fear and tremble, When the most mighty Gods, by tokens, fend Such dreadful heralds to aftonish us.

Caf. You are dull, Cafia; and those sparks of life

That

That should be in a Roman, you do want, Or elfe you use not; you look pale, and gaze, And put on fear, and cast your felf in wonder, To fee the strange impatience of the heav'ns : But if you would confider the true caufe. Why all these fires, why all these gliding ghosts, Why birds and beafts from quality and kind, Why old men, tools, and children calculate : Why all these things change, from their ordinance. Their natures and pre-formed faculties To monstrous quality; why, you shall find, That heaven hath infus'd them with these spirits, To make them inftruments of fear and warning. Unto some monstrous state. Now could I, Casca, Name to thee a man most like this dreadful night; That thunders, lightens, opens graves, and roars As doth the lion in the Capitol; A man no mightier than thy felf or me. In personal action; yet prodigious grown, And fearful, as these strange eruptions are.

Cafc. 'Tis Cefar that you mean; is it not, Caffius? Caf. Let it be who it is: for Romans now Have thewes and limbs like to their anceftors; But, woe the while! our fathers minds are dead, And we are govern'd with our mothers fpirits: Our yoke and fuff'rance fhew us womanish.

Calc. Indeed, they fay, the Senators to-morrow Mean to effablish Calar as a King: And he shall wear his crown by sea, and land, In every place, fave here in Italy.

Caf. I know where I will wear this dagger then. Caffus from bondage will deliver Caffus. Therein, ye Gods, you make the weak most firong; Therein, ye Gods, you tyrants do defeat : Nor flony tower, nor walls of beaten brafs, Nor airlefs dungeon, nor firong links of iron, Can be retentive to the firength of spirit : But life, being weary of these worldly bars,

Never lacks power to difmifs it felf. If I know this; know all the world befides, That part of tyranny that I do bear, I can shake off at pleasure.

Ca/c. So can I:

So every bondman in his own hand bears The power to cancel his captivity.

Caf. And why fhould Cæfar be a tyrant then? Poor man! I know he would not be a wolf, But that he fees the Romans are but fheep; He were no lion, were not Romans hinds. Those that with haste will make a mighty fire, Begin it with weak straws. What trash is Rome, What rubbish, and what offal, when it ferves For the base matter to illuminate So vile a thing as Cæfar? But, oh grief! Where hast thou led me? 1, perhaps, speak this Before a willing bondman: then I know My answer must be made. But I am arm'd, And dangers are to me indifferent.

Ca/. You fpeak to Cafea, and to fuch a man, That is no flearing tell-tale. Hold my hand: Be factious for redrefs of all these griefs, And I will set this foot of mine as far, As who goes farthest.

Caf. There's a bargain made. Now know you, Cafca, I have mov'd already Some certain of the nobleft-minded Romans, To under-go, with me, an enterprize, Of honourable dang'rous confequence; And I do know, by this they itay for me In Pompey's porch. For now this fearful night, There is no itir, or walking in the fireets; And the complexion of the element Is feav'rous, like the work we have in hand, Moft bloody, fiery, and most terrible.

Cafe, Stand close a while, for here comes one in hafte. Ca/. 'Tis Cinna, I do know him by his gate; He is a friend. Cinna, where hafte you fo? Cin. To find out you : who's that ? Metellus Cimber ? Ca/c. No, it is Ca/ca, one incorporate To our attempts. Am I not staid for, Cinna? Cin. I'm glad on't. What a fearful night is this! There's two or three of us have feen strange fights. Cal. Am I not staid for ? tell me. Cin. Yes you are. O Caffius ! could you win the noble Brutus To our party-Cal. Be you content. Good Cinna, take this paper, And look you lay it in the Prætor's chair, Where Brutus may but find it; and throw this In at his window; fet this up with wax Upon old Brutus' statue : all this done, Repair to Pompey's porch, where you shall find us. Is 'Decimus' Brutus, and Trebonius there? Cin. All but Metellus Cimber, and he's gone To feek you at your house. Well, I will hie, And fo beftow these papers as you had me. · Caf. That done, repair to Pompey's theatre. [Exit Cinna. Come, Cafea, you and I will, yet, ere day, See Brutus at his house; three parts of him "'Are' ours already, and the man entire Upon the next encounter yields him ours. Cafe. O, he fits high in all the people's hearts : And that which would appear offence in us, His countenance, like richeft alchymy, Will change to virtue, and to worthinefs. Caf. Him, and his worth, and our great need of him, You have right well conceited ; let us go, For it is after mid-night, and ere day We will awake him, and be fure of him. [Excust.

ACT II. SCENE I.

A Garden belonging to Brutus.

Enter Brutus.

W HAT, Lucius! ho!

VV I cannot, by the progress of the stars, Give guess how near to day——Lucius, I say! I would it were my fault to sleep so foundly. When, Lucius, when ? awake, I say! what, Lucius!

Enter Lucius.

Luc. Call'd you, my Lord?

Bru. Get me a taper in my fludy, Lucius: When it is lighted, come and call me here.

Luc. 1 will, my Lord.

Bru. It must be by his death: and for my part, I know no perfonal caufe to fourn at him, But for the general. He would be crown'd-How that might change his nature, there's the queftion. It is the bright day that brings forth the adder, And that craves wary walking : crown him-----that-And then I grant we put a fting in him, That at his will he may do danger with. Th' abuse of greatness is, when it disjoins Remorfe from power: and to speak truth of Cafar. I have not known when his affections fway'd More than his reason. But 'tis a common proof, That lowliness is young ambition's ladder, Whereto the climber upward turns his face; But when he once attains the upmost round. He then unto the ladder turns his back, Looks in the clouds, fcorning the bafe degrees By which he did ascend : so Cafar may :

Then,

[Exit.

Then, left he may, prevent. And fince the quarrel Will bear no colour for the thing he is, Fashion it thus; that what he is, augmented, Would run to these and these extremities: And therefore think him as a serpent's egg, Which hatch'd would, as his kind, grow mischievous: And kill him in the shell.

Enter Lucius.

Luc. The taper burneth in your closet, Sir: Searching the window for a flint, I found This paper, thus feal'd up, and I am fure It did not lye there, when I went to bed. Gives bim a letter. Bru. Get you to bed again, it is not day : Is not to-morrow, boy, the 'Ides' of March? Luc. I know not, Sir. Bru. Look in the kalendar, and bring me word. Luc. I will, Sir. [Exit. Bru. The exhalations, whizzing in the air. Give fo much light, that I may read by them. [Opens the letter, and reads. Brutus, thou fleep'ft; awake, and fee thy felf: Sball Rome ____ speak, strike, redres. Brutus, ibou sleep'st : awake. Such inftigations have been often dropt. Where I have took them up: Sball Rome-thus must I piece it out, Shall Rome stand under one man's awe? what, Rome? My anceftors did from the ftreets of Rome The Tarquin drive, when he was call'd a King. Speak, strike, redress.-----am I entreated then To fpeak, and strike? O Rome! I make thee promife, If the redrefs will follow, thou receiv'ft Thy full petition at the hand of Brutus.

Enter Lucius.

JULIUS CASAR.

Bru. 'Tis good. Go to the gate, fome body knocks.

Since Caffius first did whet me against Cefar,

I have not flept.

Between the acting of a dreadful thing, And the firft motion, all the interim is Like a phantafma, or a hideous dream : The Genius and the mortal inftruments Are then in council; and the flate of man, Like to a little kingdom, fuffers then The nature of an infurrection.

Enter Lucius.

Luc. Sir, 'tis your brother Cassis at the door, Who doth defire to fee you.

Bru. 1s he alone?

Luc. No, Sir, there are more with him.

Bru. Do you know them?

Lac. No, Sir, their hats are pluckt about their cars, And half their faces buried in their cloaks, That by no means I may different them By any mark of favour.

Bru. Let them enter.

[Exit Lucius.

They are the faction. O Confpiracy! Sham'ft thou to fhew thy dang'rous brow by night, When evils are most free? O then, by day Where wilt thou find a cavern dark enough, To mask thy monstrous vifage? feek none, Conspiracy, Hide it in smiles and affability: For if thou march, thy native semblance on, Not Erebus it felf were dim enough To hide thee from prevention.

S C E N E II.

Enter Cassius, Casca, Decimus, Cinna, Metellus, and Trebonius.

Caf. I think we are too bold upon your reft; Good morrow, Bruius; do we trouble you?

Bru.

Bru. I have been up this hour, awake all night.

Know I thefe men that come along with you?

[Afide. Cal. Yes, every man of them; and no man here But honours you: and every one doth with You had but that opinion of your felf, Which every noble Roman bears of you. This is Trebonius. Bry. He is welcome hither. Cal. This, Decimus Brutus, Bru. He is welcome too. Caf. This, Cafca; this, Cinna; And this Metellus Cimber. Bru. They are all welcome. What watchful cares do interpose themselves Betwixt your eyes and night? Cal. Shall I entreat a word? [Tbey wbifper. Dec. Here lyes the Eaft: doth not the day break here? Cafc. No. Cin. O pardon, Sir, it doth, and yon grey lines, That fret the clouds, are meffengers of day. Calc. You shall confess that you are both deceiv'd: Here, as I point my fword, the fun arifes, Which is a great way growing on the South, Weighing the youthful feason of the year. Some two months hence, up higher toward the North He first prefents his fire, and the high East

Stands as the Capitol, directly here.

Bru. Give me your hands all over, one by one. Cal. And let us fwear our refolution.

Bru. No, not an oath: if that the face of men, The fufferance of our fouls, the time's abufe, If these be motives weak, break off betimes, And ev'ry man hence to his idle bed : So let high-fighted tyranny range on,

'Till each man drop by lottery. But if thefe,

As I am fure they do, bear fire enough

To kindle cowards, and to fteel with valour

The melting spirits of women; then, countrymen, What What need we any four but our own caufe, To prick us to redrefs? what other bond, Than fecret Romans, that have fpoke the word, And will not palter? and what other oath, Than honefty to honefty engag'd, That this shall be, or we will fall for it? Swear priefts, and cowards, and men cautelous, Old feeble carrions, and fuch fuffering fouls That welcome wrongs: unto bad causes, swear Such creatures as men doubt; but do not stain The even virtue of our enterprize, Nor th' infuppreffive mettle of our fpirits, To think, that or our caufe, or our performance, * 'Doth' need an oath : when ev'ry drop of blood That ev'ry Roman bears, and nobly bears, Is guilty of a feveral baftardy, If he doth break the smallest particle Of any promife that hath past from him. Cal. But what of Cicero? fhall we found him? I think he will ftand very ftrong with us. Cafc. Let us not leave him out. Cin. No, by no means. Met. O let us have him, for his filver hairs Will purchase us a good opinion, And buy mens voices to commend our deeds : It shall be faid, his judgment rul'd our hands; Our youths and wildness shall no whit appear, But all be buried in his gravity. Bru. O name him not : let us not break with him. For he will never follow any thing

That other men begin.

Caf. Then leave him out.

⁵ Dec. Indeed, he is not fit.

Shall no man else be touch'd, but only Cæfar?

Caf. Decimus, well urg'd: I think it is not meet, Mark Antony fo well belov'd of Cefar Should out-live Cafar: we fhall find of him

A fhrewd contriver. And you know, his means, If he improve them, may well ftretch to far As to annoy us all; which to prevent, Let Antony and Calar fall together. Bru. Our courfe will feem too bloody, Caius Calfius, To cut the head off, and then hack the limbs; Like wrath in death, and envy afterwards: For Antony is but a limb of Cafar. Let us be facrificers, but not butchers : We all ftand up against the spirit of Cafar, And in the fpirit of man there is no blood : O that we then could come by Cafar's fpirit, And not difmember Cafar ! but, alas ! Cafar must bleed for it. And, gentle friends, Let's kill him boldly, but not wrathfully; Let's carve him as a difh fit for the Gods, Not hew him as a carcafs fit for hounds. And let our hearts, as fubtle mafters do, Stir up their fervants to an act of rage, And after feem to chide them. This shall make Our purpofe neceffary, and not envious : Which fo appearing to the common eyes, We shall be call'd purgers, not murderers. And for Mark Antony, think not of him; For he can do no more than Cafar's arm. When Cafar's head is off. Caf. Yet I do fear him ; For the ingrafted love he bears to Cafar-Bru. Alas, good Caffius, do not think of him : If he love Cælar, all that he can do Is to himfelf, take thought, and die for Cafar. And that were much he fhould ; for he is giv'n To fports, to wildnefs, and much company. Treb. There is no fear in him ; let him not die, For he will live, and laugh at this hereafter. [Clock ftrikes. Bru. Peace, count the clock. Caf. The clock hath ftricken three. Treb. ' I is time to part.

Ca/. But it is doubtful yet, If Cafar will come forth to-day, or no: For he is superstitious grown of late, Ouite from the main opinion he held once Of fantafies, of dreams, and ceremonics : It may be, these apparent prodigies, The unaccultom'd corror of this night, And the perfualion of his augurers, May hold him from the Capitol to-day.

Dec. Never fear that; if he be fo refolv'd. I can o'er-fway him; for he loves to hear That unicoms may be betray'd with trees. And bears with glasses, elephants with holes, Lions with toils, and men with flatterers : But when I tell him he hates flatterers, He fays he does; being then most flattered. Leave me to work;

For I can give his humour the true bent a And I will bring him to the Capitol.

Cal. Nay, we will all of us be there to fetch him. Bru. By the eighth hour, is that the uttermost? Cin. Be that the uttermost, and fail not then.

Met. Caius Ligarius doth bear Cefar hatred, Who rated him for speaking well of Pompey; I wonder none of you have thought of him.

Bru. Now, good Metellus, go along to him : He loves me well; and I have giv'n him reasons; Send him but hither, and I'll fashion him.

Cal. The morning comes upon's; we'll leave you, Brutusa And, friends! difperfe your felves; but all remember What you have faid, and fhew your felves true Romans.

Bru. Good Gentlemen, look fresh and merrily; Let not our looks put on our purpofes, But bear it as our Roman actors do, With untir'd spirits, and formal constancy;

And fo good-morrow to you every one.

SCENE III.

Enter Portia.

Por. Brutus, my Lord!

Bru. Portis, what mean you? wherefore rife you now? It is not for your health thus to commit Your weak condition to the raw cold morning. Por. Nor for yours neither. You've ungently, Brutus, Scale from my hed, and unformight at furner.

Stole from my bed : and yefternight at supper You fuddenly arole and walk'd about, Musing, and fighing, with your arms a-cross: And when I ask'd you what the matter was, You ftar'd upon me with ungentle looks. I urg'd you further, then you fcratch'd your head, And too impatiently stamp'd with your foot : Yet I infifted, yet you answer'd not, But with an angry wafture of your hand Gave fign for me to leave you : fo I did, Fearing to strengthen that impatience, Which feem'd too much inkindled; and withal. Hoping it was but an effect of humour, Which fometime hath his hour with every man. It will not let you eat, nor talk, nor fleep; And could it work fo much upon your fhape, As it hath much prevail'd on your condition, I should not know you, Brutus. Dear my Lord, Make me acquainted with your caule of grief.

Bru. I am not well in health, and that is all.

Por. Brutus is wife, and were he not in health, He would embrace the means to come by it.

Bru.

Bru. Why, fo I do: good Portia, go to bed. Por. Is Brutus fick, and is it phylical To walk unbraced, and fuck up the humours Of the dank morning? what! is Brutus fick, And will he steal out of his wholfome bed, To dare the vile contagion of the night, And tempt the rheumy and unpurged air, To add unto his fickness? no, my Brutus, You have fome fick offence within your mind, Which, by the right and virtue of my place, I ought to know of: and upon my knees, I charge you, by my once-commended beauty, By all your vows of love, and that great vow Which did incorporate and make us one, That you unfold to me, your felf, your half, Why you are heavy : and what men to-night Have had refort to you : for here have been Some fix or feven, who did hide their faces Even from darkness.

Bru. Kneel not, gentle Portia.

Enter Calphurnia.

Calp. What mean you, Cefar? think you to walk forth? You shall not thir out of your house to-day.

Cef. Cefar ihall forth; the things that threatned me, Ne'er lookt but on my back : when they fhall fee The face of Cefar, they are vanished.

Calp. Cæfar, 1 never ftood on ceremonies, Yet now they fright me: there is one within, (Befides the things that we have heard and feen) Recounts most horrid fights feen by the watch. A lionefs hath whelped in the ftreets, And graves have yawn'd and yielded up their dead;

Fierce

Fierce fiery warriors fight upon the clouds, In ranks and fquadrons and right form of war, Which drizzled blood upon the Capitol: The noife of battel hurtled in the air, Horfes did neigh, and dying men did groan, And ghofts did fhriek and fqueal about the ftreets. O Cæfar! these things are beyond all use, And I do fear them.

Cef. What can be avoided, Whole end is purpos'd by the mighty Gods? Yet Cefar shall go forth: for these predictions Are to the world in general, as to Cefar.

Calp. When beggars die, there are no comets feen, The heav'ns themfelves blaze forth the death of Princes.

Cef. Cowards die many times before their deaths, The valiant never tafte of death but once: Of all the wonders that I yet have heard, It feems to me most strange that men should fear : Seeing that death, a necessary end, Will come, when it will come.

Caf. What, urge you your petitions in the ftreet? Come to the Capitol.

Pop. 1 with your enterprize to-day may thrive. Caf. What enterprize, Popilius ?

Pop. Fare you well.

Bru. What faid Popilius Lana?

Ca/. He wish'd to-day our enterprise might thrive: I fear our purpose is discovered.

Bru. Look how he makes to Calar; mark him.

Caf. Cafca, be fudden, for we fear prevention.

Brutus, what shall be done? if this be known,

Caffius or Celar never shall turn back,

For I will flay my felf.

Bru. Callius, be conftant :

Popilius Lena speaks not of our purpole;

For look he fmiles, and Ce/ar doth not change.

Caf. Trebonius knows his time; for look you, Brutus, He draws Mark Antony out of the way.

Dec. Where is Metellus Cimber ? let him go, And prefently prefer his fuit to Cafar.

Bru. He is addreft; prefs near, and fecond him.

Cin. Casca, you are the first that 'rear' your hand.

Cal. Are you all ready? what is now amifs,

That Celar and his Senare must redrefs?

Met. Is there no voice more worthy than my own, To found more fweetly in great Caefar's ear, For the repealing of my banish'd brother ?

Bru. I kifs thy hand, but not in flattery, Cafar; Defiring thee, that Publius Cimber may Have an immediate freedom of repeal.

Cal. What, Brutus!

Caf. Pardon, Cafar, Cafar, pardon; As low as to thy foot doth Caffius fall, To beg enfranchifement for Publius Cimber.

Caf. Where's Antony?

Treb. Fled to his house amaz'd.

Men, wives, and children, ftare, cry out and run, As it were dooms-day.

Bru. Fates! we will know your pleafures ; That we shall die, we know; 'tis but the time And drawing days out, that men fland upon.

Caf. Why, he that cuts off twenty years of life, Cuts off fo many years of fearing death.

Bru. Grant that, and then is death a benefit. So are we Cafar's friends, that have abridg'd His time of fearing death. Stoop, Romans, stoop, And let us bathe our hands in Ca[ar's blood Up to the elbows, and befmear our fwords; Then walk we forth even to the market-place, And waving our red weapons o'er our heads, Let's all cry, Peace! freedom! and liberty!

Caf. Stoop then, and wash —— how many ages hence [Dipping their fwords in Cæfar's blood, Shall this our lofty scene be acted o'er, In states unborn, and accents yet unknown !

Cafe. How many times shall Cefar bleed in sport, That now on Pompey's basis lyes along, No worthier than the dust !

Bru. So oft as that shall be, So often shall the knot of us be call'd The men that gave their country liberty.

Dec. What, shall we forth?

Gal. Ay, every man away.

Bruius shall lead, and we will grace his heels With the most bold, and the best hearts of Rome.

Enter a Servant.

Bru. Soft, who comes here ?

Ser. A friend of Antony's.

Thus, Brutus, did my master bid me kneel; Thus did Mark Antony bid me fall down, [Kneeling. And being proftrate, thus he bad me fay. Brutus is noble, wife, valiant and honeft; Calar was mighty, royal, bold and loving; Say, I love Brutus, and I honour him; Say, I fear'd Cæfar, honour'd him, and lov'd him. If Brutus will vouchfafe that Antony May fafely come to him, and be refolv'd How Celar hath deferv'd to lye in death: Mark Antony shall not love Calar dead So well as Brutus living; but will follow The fortunes and affairs of noble Brutus, Thorough the hazards of this untrod state. With all true faith. So fays my master Antony. Bru. Thy master is a wife and valiant Roman,

I never thought him worfe. Tell him, fo pleafe him come unto this place, He shall be fatisfied, and by my honour, Depart untouch'd.

Ser. I'll fetch him prefently.

Bru. I know that we shall have him well to friend.

Caf. I with we may : but yet have I a mind That fears him much; and my mifgiving still Falls shrewdly to the purpose.

SCENE III.

Enter Antony.

Bru. But here comes Antony. Welcome, Mark Antony. Ant. O mighty Calar ! doit thou lye fo low ? Are all thy conquests, glories, triumphs, spoils, Shrunk to this little measure ? --- fare thee well. I know not, gentlemen, what you intend, Who else must be let blood, who else is rank; If I my felf, there is no hour fo fit As Cefar's death's hour; nor no instrument Of half that worth as those your fwords, made rich With the most noble blood of all this world. I do befeech ye, if you bear me hard, Now whilft your purpled hands do reek and fmoak, Fulfil your pleasure. Live a thousand years, I shall not find myself so apt to die: No place will pleafe me fo, no means of death, As here by Cafar, and by you cut off, The choice and master spirits of this age. Bru: O Antony ! beg not your death of us :

Bru: O Antony! beg not your death of us: Though now we muft appear bloody and cruel, As, by our hands and this our prelent act, You fee we do; yet fee you but our hands, And this the bleeding bufinefs they have done: Our hearts you fee not, they are pitiful; And pity to the general wrong of Rome, (As fire drives out fire, fo pity, pity)

Caf. Your voice shall be as strong as any man's In the disposing of new dignities.

Bru. Only be patient 'till we have appeas'd The multitude, befide themfelves with fear; And then we will deliver you the caufe, Why I, that did love Cafar when I ftrook him, Proceeded thus.

Ant. I doubt not of your wildom. Let each man render me his bloody hand ; First. Marcus Brutus, will I shake with you; Next, Caius Cassius, do I take your hand ; Now, Decimus Brutus, yours; now yours, Metellus; Yours, Cinna; and, my valiant Cafca, yours; Though last, not least in love, yours, good Trebonius. Gentlemen all --- alas, what shall I fay? My credit now stands on such slippery ground, That one of two bad ways you must conceit me. Either a coward, or a flatterer. That I did love thee, Gefar, oh 'tis true; If then thy spirit look upon us now, Shall it not grieve thee dearer than thy death, To fee thy Antony making his peace, Shaking the bloody fingers of thy foes, Most noble! in the presence of thy corie? Had I as many eyes as thou haft wounds. Weeping as fast as they stream forth thy blood, It would become me better than to close In terms of friendship with thine enemies. Caf. I blame you not for praifing Cafar fo, But what compact mean you to have with us? Will you be prick'd in number of our friends, Or fhall we on, and not depend on you?

Ant. Therefore I took your hands, but was indeed Sway'd from the point, by looking down on $C\alpha/ar$. Friends am I with you all, and love you all, Upon this hope, that you fhall give me reafons Why, and wherein $C\alpha/ar$ was dangerous.

Bru. Or else were this a favage spectacle. Our reasons are so full of good regard, That were you, Antony, the son of Cesar, You should be fatisfied.

Ant. That's all I feek; And am moreover fuitor, that I may Produce his body to the market-place, And in the pulpit, as becomes a friend, Speak in the order of his funeral.

Bru. You shall, Mark Antony.

Caf. Brutus, a word with you _____ You know not what you do, do not confent That Antony shall speak in his funeral: Know you how much the people may be mov'd By that which he will utter?

Bru. By your pardon, I will my felf into the pulpit first, And shew the reason of our Cæsar's death. What Antony shall speak, I will protest He speaks by leave, and by permission; And that we are contented Cæsar shall Have all due rites, and lawful ceremonies:

And this indeed, O world, the heart of thee. How like a deer ftricken by many princes, Doit thou here lye? Caf. Mark Antony, &c. [Afide.

Caf. I know not what may fall, I like it not. Bru. Mark Antony, here take you Cafar's body:
You shall not in your funeral speech blame us, But speak all good you can devise of Cafar, And fay you do't by our permission:
You shall not else have any hand at all About his funeral. And you shall speak In the same pulpit whereto I am going, After my speech is ended.

Ant. Be it so;

I do desire no more.

Bru. Prepare the body then, and follow us. [Exeant.

Ant. O pardon me, thou bleeding piece of earth ! That I am meek and gentle with these butchers. Thou art the ruins of the nobleft man That ever lived in the tide of times. Woe to the hand that fhed this coftly blood! Over thy wounds now do I prophetie, (Which, like dumb mouths, do ope their ruby lips, To beg the voice and utterance of my tongue) A curfe shall light upon the 3'kind' of men; Domestick fury, and fierce civil strife, Shall cumber all the parts of Italy; Blood and destruction shall be fo in use, And dreadful objects to familiar, That mothers shall but smile, when they behold Their infants quarter'd by the hands of war, All pity choak'd with cultom of fell deeds. You ferve Octavius Cafar, do you not?

Ser. I do, Mark Antony.

Ant. Cafar did write for him to come to Rome. Ser. He did receive his letters, and is coming, And bid me fay to you by word of mouth -[Seeing the body. O Celar ! Ant. Yet flay a while, Thou shalt not back, 'till I have born this corfe Into the market-place : there shall I try In my Oration, how the people take The cruel iffue of these bloody men; According to the which, thou shalt discourse To young Ostavius of the state of things. Those that will hear me speak, let 'em stay here; Those that will follow Cassian go with him, And publick reasons shall be rendered Of Casar's death.

1 Pleb. I will hear Brutus speak.

2 Pleb. I will hear Cassian, and compare their reasons, When fev'rally we hear them rendered.

[Exit Caffius, with fome of the Plebeians. 2 Pleb. The noble Brutus is afcended : filence !

Bru. Be patient 'till the laft.

Romans, Countrymen, and Friends! hear me for my caufe ; and be filent, that you may hear. Believe me for mine honour, and have respect to mine honour, that you may believe. Cenfure me in your wifdom, and awake your fenses that you may the better judge. If there be any in this affembly, any dear friend of Cesar's, to him I fay, that Brutus's love to Cafar was no lefs than his. ff then that friend demand, why Brutus role against Calar. this is my answer: Not that I lov'd Celar lefs, but that I lov'd Rome more. Had you rather Cefar were living, and dye all flaves; than that Calar were dead, to live all free-men? As Cafar lov'd me, I weep for him; as he was fortunate. I rejoice at it; as he was valiant, I honour him; but as he was ambitious, I flew him. There are tears for his love, joy for his fortune, honour for his valour, and death for his ambition. Who's here to bafe that would be a bond-man? if any, fpeak; for him have I offended. Who is here fo rude, that would not be a Roman? if any, fpeak; for him have I offended. Who is here to vile, that will not love his country? if any. fpeak; for him have I offended. — I paule for a reply — All. None, Brutus, none.

Bru. Then none have I offended —— I have done no more to Cafar than you shall do to Brutus. The question of his death is inroll'd in the Capitol; his glory not extenuated, wherein he was worthy; nor his offences enforc'd, for which he fuffered death.

Enter

Enter Mark Anthony with Cæfar's body.

Here comes his body, mourn'd by Mark Antony: who though he had no hand in his death, fhall receive the benefit of his dying, a place in the common-wealth; as which of you fhall not? With this I depart, that as I flew my belt lover for the good of Rome, I have the fame dagger for my felf, when it fhall please my country to need my death.

2 Pleb. Give him a statue with his ancestors.

3 Pleb. Let him be Cæsar.

4 Pleb. Casar's better parts

Shall now be crown'd in Brutus.

1 Pleb. We'll bring him to his house

With shouts and clamours.

Bru. My countrymen-----

2 Pleb. Peace! filence! Brutus speaks.

I Pleb. Peace, ho!

Bru. Good countrymen, let me depart alone, And for my fake, ftay here with Antony; Do grace to Cæfar's corps, and grace his fpeech Tending to Cæfar's glories, which Mark Antony By our permiffion is allow'd to make. I do intreat you, not a man depart,

Save I alone, 'till Antony have spoke.

SCENE VI.

1 Pleb. Stay, ho, and let us hear Mark Antony.

3 Pleb. Let him go up into the publick chair,

We'll hear him: noble Antony, go up.

Ant. For Brutus' fake I am beholden to you.

4 Pleb. What does he fay of Brutus?

3 Pleb. He fays, for Brutus' fake

He finds himfelf beholden to us all.

4 Pleb. 'Twere best he speak no harm of Brutus here.

1 Pleb. This Cafar was a tyrant.

3 Pleb.

3 Pleb. Nay, that's certain : We are glad that Rome is rid of him. 2 Pleb. Peace, let us hear what Antony can fay. Ant. You gentle Romans-All. Peace, ho, let us hear him. Ant. Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears; I come to bury Cafar, not to praife him. The evil that men do, lives after them, The good is oft interred with their bones : So let it be with Calar ! noble Brutus Hath told you, Calar was ambitious; If it were fo, it was a grievous fault, And grievoully hath Calar answer'd it. Here, under leave of Brutus, and the reft, (For Brutus is an honourable man, So are they all, all honourable men) Come I to fpeak in Celar's funeral. He was my friend, faithful and just to me: But Brutus fays, he was ambitious; And Brutus is an honourable man. He hath brought many captives home to Rome, Whofe ranfoms did the general coffers fill; Did this in Calar feem ambitious? When that the poor have cry'd, Cafar hath wept; Ambition should be made of sterner stuff. Yet Brutus fays, he was ambitious; And Brutus is an honourable man. You all did fee, that at the Lupercal I thrice prefented him a kingly crown, Which he did thrice refuse. Was this ambition? Yet Brutus fays, he was ambitious : And fure he is an honourable man. I fpeak not to difprove what Brutus fpoke, But here I am to speak what I do know. You all did love him once, not without caufe, What caufe with-holds you then to mourn for him? O judgment! thou art fled to brutish beasts, And men have loft their reason-bear with me,

My

My heart is in the coffin there with Cafar,

And I must pause 'till it come back to me.

1 Pleb. Methinks there is much reason in his fayings. If thou confider rightly of the matter,

Casar has had great wrong. *

3 Pleb. Has he, masters? I fear there will a worse come in his place.

4 Pleb. Mark'd ye his words? he would not take the crown; Therefore 'tis certain, he was not ambitious.

1 Pleb. If it be found fo, fome will dear abide it.

2 Pleb. Poor foul! his eyes are red as fire with weeping.

3 Pleb. There's not a nobler man in Rome than Antony.

4 Pleb. Now mark him, he begins again to fpeak.

Ant But yesterday the word of Ce/ar might Have stood against the world; now lyes he there, And none so poor to do him reverence. O masters! if I were dispos'd to stir Your hearts and minds to mutiny and rage, I should do Brutus wrong, and Calsius wrong; Who, you all know, are honourable men. I will not do them wrong: I rather chuse To wrong the dead, to wrong my felf and you, Than I will wrong such honourable men. But here's a parchment, with the seal of Cesar, I found it in his closet, 'tis his Will; Let but the Commons hear this testament, (Which, pardon me, I do not mean to read) Q 3

(a) Cafar has had great wrong.

3 Pleb. Cafar had never wrong, but with just cause. If ever there was fuch a line written by Shakespear, I bould fancy it might have its place here, and very humorously in the character of a Plebeian. One might believe Ben Johnson's remark was made upon no better credit than some blunder of an actor in speaking that werse near the beginning of the third act,

Know Ca / ar doth not wrong, nor without caufe Will he be fatisfy'd—

But the verfe as cited by Ben Johnson does not connect with——Will he be fatisfy'd. Perbaps this play was never printed in Ben Johnson's time. and fo he had nothing to judge by, but as the after pleas'd to speak it. Pope.

The

The first time ever Cefar put it on, 'Twas on a fummer's evening in his tent, That day he overcame the Nervii.-Look! in this place, ran Callius' dagger through-See what a rent the envious Casca made.-Through this, the well-beloved Brutus ftabb'd; And as he pluck'd his curfed fteel away, Mark how the blood of Cafar follow'd it! As rushing out of doors, to be refolv'd, If Brutus to unkindly knock'd, or no: For Brutus, as you know, was Cælar's angel. Judge, oh you Gods! how dearly Cefar lov'd him. This, this, was the unkindeft cut of all; For when the noble Cafar faw him ftab, Ingratitude, more strong than traitors arms, Quite vanquish'd him; then burst his mighty heart: And in his mantle muffling up his face, Even at the base of Pompey's statue which All the while + 'ran with blood,' great Cafar fell. Oh what a fall was there, my countrymen! Then I, and you, and all of us fell down, Whilft bloody treason flourish'd over us. O, now you weep, and I perceive you feel The dint of pity; these are gracious drops. Kind fouls! what, weep you when you but behold Our Cafar's vefture wounded? look you here! They that have done this deed, are honourable.

What private griefs they have, alas, I know not, That made them do it; they are wife and honourable; And will no doubt with reafons answer you.

I come not, friends, to steal away your hearts; I am no Orator, as Brutus is:

But, as you know me all, a plain blunt man, That love my friend; and that they know full well, That give me publick leave to fpeak of him: For I have neither wit, nor words, nor worth, Action nor utt'rance, nor the power of fpeech, To ftir mens blood; I only fpeak right on. I tell you that which you your felves do know, Shew you fweet Cafar's wounds, poor, poor dumb mouths! And bid them fpeak for me. But were I Brutus, And Brutus Antony, there were an Antony Would ruffle up your fpirits, and put a tongue In every wound of Cafar, that fhould move The ftones of Rome to rife and mutiny.

All. We'll mutiny

I Pleb. We'll burn the house of Brutus.

3 Pleb. Away then, come, feek the confpirators.

Ant. Yet hear me, countrymen, yet hear me speak.

All. Peace, ho, hear Antony, most noble Antony.

Ant. Why, friends, you go to do you know not what. Wherein hath Cæfar thus deferv'd your loves? Alas, you know not; I must tell you then:

You have forgot the Will I told you of,

All. Most true—the Will—let's stay and hear the Will. Ant. Here is the Will, and under Ca[ar's feal.

Hefe many then shall die, their names are prickt.

Off. Your brother too must die; confent you. Lepidus ?

Lep. I do confent.

Off. Prick him down, Antony.

Lep. Upon condition Publius shall not live,

Who is your fifter's fon, Mark Antony.

Ant. He shall not live; look, with a spot, I damn him. But, Lepidus, go you to Cafar's house; Fetch the Will hither, and we shall determine

How to cut off fome charge in legacies.

Lep. What? shall I find you here?

Off. Or here, or at the Capitol. [Exit Lepidus.

Ant. This is a flight unmeritable man,

Meet to be fent on errands: is it fit,

The three-fold world divided, he should stand

One of the three to fhare it?

Off. So you thought him,

And took his voice who fhould be prickt to die, In our black fentence and profeription.

Ant. Octavius, I have feen more days than you; And though we lay these honours on this man, To ease our selves of divers fland'rous loads; He shall but bear them, as the ass bears gold, To groan and fweat under the busines, Or led or driven, as we point the way; And having brought our treasure where we will,

Then

Then take we down his load, and turn him off Like to the empty als, to shake his ears, And graze in common.

Off. You may do your will; But he's a try'd and valiant foldier.

Ant. So is my horfe, Ottavius, and for that I do appoint him ftore of provender. It is a creature that I teach to fight, To wind, to ftop, to run directly on, His corporal motion govern'd by my spirit. And in some taste, is Lepidus but so; He must be taught, and train'd, and bid go forth, A barren-fpirited fellow, one that feeds On ⁶ 'abject orts,' and imitations, Which out of use and stal'd by other men, Begin his fashion. Do not talk of him. But as a property. And now, Octavius, Liften great things ---- Brutus and Callius Are levying powers; we must straight make head. Therefore let our alliance be combin'd, Our best friends made, and our best means stretcht out; And let us prefently go fit in council, How covert matters may be beft difclos'd, And open perils fureft answered.

Off. Let us do fo; for we are at the flake, And bay'd about with many enemies; And fome that finile have in their hearts, I fear, Millions of mifchiefs. [Excunt.]

Bru. Under your pardon.—You must note beside, That we have try'd the utmost of our friends, Our legions are brim-full, our cause is ripe; The enemy encreasesth every day, We, at the height, are ready to decline. Come hither, firrah; In Parthia did I take thee prifoner, And then I fwore thee, faving of thy life, That whatfoever I did bid thee do, Thou should it attempt it. Come, now keep thine oath. Now be a freeman, and with this good fword That ran through Cafar's bowels, fearch this bofom. Stand not to anfwer; here take thou the hilt, And when my face is cover'd, as 'tis now, Guide thou the fword——Cafar, thou art reveng'd Ev'n with the fword that kill'd thee. [Kills bimfelf. Pin. So, I am free, yet would not fo have been, Durft I have done my will. O Callius. Far from this country Pindarus shall run, Where never Roman shall take note of him. [Exit.

SCENEV.

Enter Titinius and Meffala.

Mef. It is but change, Titinius; for Ostavius Is overthrown by noble Brutus' power, As Caffius' legions are by Antony.

Tit. These tidings will well comfort Caffius.

Mel. Where did you leave him?

Tit. All disconsolate,

With Pindarus his bondman, on this hill.

Mef. Is not that he, that lyes upon the ground? Tit. He lyes not like the living. Oh my heart! Mef. Is not that he?

Tit. No, this was he, Meffala, But Caffius is no more ! Oh fetting fun, As in thy red rays thou doft fink to night, So in his red blood Caffius' day is fet; The fun of Rome is fet ! our day is gone,

Clouds,

Clouds, dews, and dangers come; our deeds are done; Mistrust of my fuccess hath done this deed.

Mef. Miftruft of good fuccels hath done this deed. Oh hateful Error, Melancholy's child! Why doft thou fhew to the apt thoughts of men The things that are not? Error, foon conceiv'd, Thou never com'ft unto a happy birth, But kill'ft the mother that engender'd thee.

Tit. What, Pindarus ! where art thou, Pindarus ? Mef. Seek him, Titinius, whilft I go to meet The noble Brutus, thrufting this report Into his ears; I may fay, thrufting it; For piercing fteel and darts invenomed Shall be as welcome to the ears of Brutus, As tidings of this fight.

Tit. Hye you, Meffala, And I will feek for Pindarus the while. [Exit Meffah. Why didft thou fend me forth, brave Caffins? Did I not meet thy friends, and did not they Put on my brows this wreath of victory, And bid me give it thee? didft thou not hear their fhouts? Alas, thou haft mifconftru'd ev'ry thing. But hold thee, take this garland on thy brow. Thy Brutus bid me give it thee, and I Will do his bidding. Brutus, come apace, And fee how I regarded Caius Caffius. By your leave, Gods----This is a Roman's part. [Stabs bim/elf.

Come, Cassier's food, and find Titinius' heart. [Dies.

SCENE VI.

Alarum. Enter Brutus, Messala, young Cato, Strato, Volumnius, and Lucilius.

Bru. Where, where, Meffala, doth his body lye? Mef. Lo, yonder, and Tatinius mourning it. Bru. Tatinius' face is upward. Cato. He is flain.

Bru.

Bru. Oh Julius Cafar, thou art mighty yet! Thy fpirit walks abroad, and turns our fwords In our own proper entrails. [Low alarums.

Cato. Brave Titinius ! Look, if he have not crown'd dead Caffius! Bru. Are yet two Romans living fuch as thefe? Thou last of all the Romans! fare thee well; It is impossible that ever Rome Should breed thy fellow. Friends, I owe more tears To this dead man, than you shall fee me pay. I shall find time, Callius, I shall find time Come therefore, and to ³'Tbaffos' fend his body; His funeral shall not be in our camp, Lest it discomfort us. Lucilius, come, And come, young Cato, let us to the field. Labeo and Flavius fet our battels on. 'Tis three o' clock, and, Romans, yet ere night We shall try fortune in a fecond fight. Excunt.

SCENE VII.

The Field of Battel.

Alarum. Enter Brutus, Meffala, Cato, Lucilius, and Flavius.

Bru. Y E T, countrymen, oh yet, hold up your heads. Cato. What baftard doth not? who will go with me?

I will proclaim my name about the field. I am the fon of Marcus Cato, ho! A foe to tyrants, and my country's friend. I am the fon of Marcus Cato, ho!

Enter Soldiers and fight.

Bru. And I am Brutus, Marcus Brutus, I Brutus my country's friend; know me for Brutus. [Exit. Luc.

Luc. Oh young and noble Cato, art thou down? Why, now thy dieft as bravely as Titinins, And may'ft be honour'd, being Cate's fon. Sold. Yield, or thou dieft. Luc. 9'I only' yield, to die; There is fo much, that thou wilt kill me straight; Giving bim money. Kill Brutus, and be honour'd in his death. Sold. We must not. A noble prifoner! Enter Antony. 2 Sold. Room, ho! tell Antony, Brutus is ta'en. 1 Sold. I'll tell the news, here comes the General: Brutus is ta'en, Brutus is ta'en, my Lord. Ant. Where is he? Luc. Safe, Antony; Brutus is fafe enough. I dare affure thee, that no enemy Shall ever take alive the noble Brutus: The Gods defend him from fo great a shame! When you do find him or alive, or dead, He will be found like Brutus, like himfelf. Ant. This is not Brutus, friend, but I affure you, A prize no lefs in worth ; keep this man fafe, Give him all kindness. I had rather have Such men my friends, than enemies. Go on, And fee if Brutus be alive or dead. And bring us word unto Ostavius' tent How every thing is chanc'd. [Exeunt.

SCENE VIII.

Another part of the Field.

Enter Brutus, Pardanius, Clitus, Strato, and Volumnius. Bru. Ome, poor remains of friends, reft on this rock. Cli. Statilius fhew'd the torch-light, but, my Lord, He came not back, he is or ta'en, or flain. Vol. V. S Bru.

9 Only I

Bru. Sit thee down, Clitus; flaying is the word, It is a deed in fashion. Hark thee, Clitus-Whispering. Cli. What I, my Lord? no, not for all the world. Bru. Peace then, no words. Cli. I'll rather kill my felf. Bru. Hark thee, Dardanius! Dar. I do fuch a deed ? Cli. Oh Dardanins! Dar. Oh Clitus ! Cli. What ill request did Brutus make to thee? Dar. To kill him, Clitus : look, he meditates. Cli. Now is that noble veffel full of grief. That it runs over even at his eyes. Bru. Come hither, good Volumnius, lift a word. Vol. What fays my Lord ? Bru. Why this, Volumnius : The ghoft of Cafar hath appear'd to me Two feveral times by night; at Sardis, once ; And this last night, here in Philippi-Fields. I know my hour is come. Vol. Not fo, my Lord. Bru. Nay, I am fure it is, Volumnius. Thou feeft the world, Volumnius, how it goes ; Our enemies have beat us to the pit: [Alarum, It is more worthy to leap in our felves, Than tarry 'till they push us. Good Volumnius, Thou know'ft that we two went to school together ; Even for that, our love of old, I pr'ythce Hold thou my fword's hilt, while I run on it. Vol. That's not an office for a friend, my Lord. [Alarum still. Cli. Fly, fly, my Lord, there is no tarrying here. Brn. Farewel to you, and you; and you, Volumnius. Strato, thou hast been all this while affeep; Farewel to thee too, Strate ; countrymen, My heart doth joy, that yet in all my life, I found no man, but he was true to me. I shall have glory by this losing day, More

More than Ostavius and Mark Antony By this vile conquest shall attain unto. So fare you well at once, for Brutas' tongue Hath almost ended his life's history Night hangs upon mine eyes, my bones would reft. That have but labour'd to attain this bour. [Alarum. Cry within, Fly, fly, Cli. Fly, my Lord, fly -Bru. Hence; I will follow thee. I prythee, Strate, flay thou by thy Lord ; Thou art a fellow of a good refpect, Thy life hath had fome imatch of honour in't. Hold then my fword, and turn away thy face, While I do run upon it. Wilt thou, Strato? Stra. Give me your hand first-fare you well, my Lord! Bru. Farewel, good Strato - Cafar, now be still; I kill'd not thee with half fo good a will. [He runs on bis foord and dies. E C N IX. S E Alarum. Retreat. Enter Antony, Octavius, Messala, Lucilius, and the Army. $O\mathcal{E}$. What man is that? Mef. My mafter's man. Strato, where is thy mafter ? Stra. Free from the bondage you are in, Meffala; The conqu'rors can but make a fire of him : For Brutus only overcame himself, And no man else hath honour by his death. Luc. So Brutus should be found. I thank thee, Brutus, That thou hast prov'd Lucilius' faying true. Off. All that ferv'd Brutus I will entertain them. Fellow, wilt thou beftow thy time with me? Stra. Ay, if Meffala will prefer me to you. Off. Do fo, good Meffala. Mef. How died my Lord, Strato? Stra. I held the fword, and he did run on it. S 2 Mef.

Mef. Ottavius, 'take him then' to follow thee, That did the lateft fervice to my master.

Ant. This was the nobleft Roman of them all: All the confpirators, fave only he, Did that they did in envy of great Cafar: He only, in a general honeft thought And common good to all, made one of them. His life was gentle; and the elements So mixt in him, that nature might fland up, And fay to all the world, I bis was a man!

OET. According to his virtue let us ufe him, With all refpect, and rites of burial. Within my tent his bones to-night fhall lye, Moft like a foldier, order'd honourably. So call the field to reft, and let's away, To part the glories of this happy day. [Excunt omnes.
